"I wasn't familiar with the industry before since I was a Political Science student but that changed after the MSC Maritime Careers Workshop. It was there that I learnt about Wilhelmsen Ships Service and I was drawn to their projects in technology and digitalisation. I joined them as a marketing intern and was involved in the world's first shore-to-ship drone delivery project. When they offered me a full-time position upon graduation, I was really excited at the chance to kickstart my career there!"

"I had always loved the sea but never considered it as a career until I went for the Careers at Sea & Beyond Exhibition organised by the MSC Office. It was timely then as I felt the office-based jobs I tried after graduation were not for me. I was also looking for career progression. At the event, I heard from cadets about the place-and-train programmes and their experiences on board ships, and that really inspired me!"

When You Try to Build a Team, You Need a Mix of Talent.

- Antonio Conte -

The Maritime Singapore Connect (MSC) Office was set up by the Maritime and Port Authority of Singapore in 2016. The unit under the Singapore Maritime Foundation works closely with maritime companies on their talent needs, with various initiatives to elevate the profiling efforts of the maritime industry and connect students and jobseekers to maritime opportunities.

"At Jurong Port, we believe in enhancing our employer branding through outreach initiatives, traditional and social media to attract the best talents. The MSC Office has been very supportive in featuring interesting projects unique to our port and profiling our employees' stories on their social platforms, which has helped us greatly in our publicity and recruitment efforts."

"We decided to put up our job opening on the MSC website since it was free and it was really hassle-free because they did it for us. To our pleasant surprise, we attracted over ten quality applications within a day. The office was also abuzz with excitement when our Operations Executive colleague came out in the news thanks to the work of the MSC Office."
